New Testimonials.

Testimonial from Deacon Theodore B. Perkins, formerly of the well known house of Nason, Hamlin & Co., Augusta, Me., after using one 35 cent bottle of Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam.

GLOUCESTER, Mass. Dec. 26, 1871.

F. W. KINMAN, Esq.—My Dear Sir: Excessive business cares alone prevented my earlier acknowledging the receipt of your very valuable favor, and I am now glad to say that your Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam is the most efficacious preparation for coughs and colds I ever have had in my family. At the time it was received, I was suffering badly with Asthma, attended with a dry, hard cough. Less than a bottle of it immediately after using the Balsam. The latter has not returned. It is now several weeks.

We, the undersigned, having an eyed for many years an intimate personal acquaintance with Deacon Theodore Perkins, would say that his case of Asthma was as bad as any that has ever come under our notice, and that to our knowledge, on account of this illness he went to California, where he remained about one year undergoing treatment for the disease.

MR. F. W. KINSMAN—Dear Sir: For the last 8 years I have been troubled with a cough; have spent one winter in Florida, taken about everything in the shape of patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions, and I can say that your Adamson's Botanic Balsam is the best thing I have found for a cough. I have been using it some three months, and am about well.

Yours truly,
S. B. FOSTER,
Formerly of Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Jan. 26, 1872.

MR. KINSMAN.—I have been troubled with Asthma, attended with a Cough, ever since I was six years of age; have tried various remedies. Commenced using Adamson's Botanic Cough Balsam some time in January, 1871, and it seemed to get like magic during use of one. I have had but little cough since, and I think that it is the best remedy to be found for Asthma. I have since recommended it to quite a number, and it has given good satisfaction.

RELIEF FOR OUR SHIPPING INTERESTS

In view of the exceptional hardships suffered by this State, in the prostration during the civil war of its once extensive shipbuilding industries, and of the dissatisfaction which has been expressed at the failure of Congress to afford measures of relief, it is due to the Maine delegation to call attention to the promptness, unanimity and zeal with which they have labored in behalf of this interest. In endeavoring to secure favorable legislation our Representatives have met with the most serious obstacles in the skepticism of a large number of members as to the utility of the efforts to revive our shipbuilding; in the selfish hostility of others to any interference with the protection of materials produced in their own sections, and especially in the persistent and powerful efforts of the Democrats to throw open our registry to foreign built vessels. To those ship-owners and ship-builders whose natural impatience at the inaction of Congress, induced such an assidious courtship on the part of the Democracy during the last state campaign, the recent debates at Washington should possess an instructive significance. The relief which they can expect at the hands of the Democratic party is just that which is advocated by their leader in the House, Samuel Cox; and the determination with which he and his associates strive to break down the last barrier to an annihilating foreign competition, affords a conspicuous contrast to the earnest efforts of our Republican members to secure the passage of measures demanded by the representatives of American shipping interests. In this connection, the hostility of certain Democratic papers in this State, towards the bill advocated by Mr. Hale, will not be overlooked. There may be great diversity of opinion as to the beneficial results of the legislation proposed, but the ship-builders and owners declare that with the aid of these measures they can successfully revive their partially ruined fortunes, and so long as the principle of protection is sustained by Congress, there is no excuse in refusing to extend its benefits to this important branch of industry, or at least to give a fair trial to a policy so urgently advocated by those best acquainted with the business.

When Mr. Hale's bill came up on Monday, he earnestly pressed for an immediate vote, but under the combined influence of Democratic attacks upon American registry and the desire of various committees to have the handling of the measure, it was finally referred to the Ways and Means Committee, of which Mr. Dawes of Massachusetts is chairman. In what shape it will emerge it is impossible to foretell, though the Committee conceded the importance of action. As evidence of the earnestness and vigor with which the bill was urged to a passage, we copy from the Boston Journal the following brief abstract of Mr. Hale's remarks:—

The bill introduced by me, and on which I seek a direct vote to-day, is simple and some fault has been found that I push its passage without sending it to a committee. Several reasons move me—first, the importance of the subject; the building of our ships and the sailing of them to earn money make an interest greater than that has asked relief at the hands of Congress.

Second, the decline and prostration of this interest is undisputed. The carrying trade of the world has nearly left us. We build no large ships, or very few. Our earnings in the foreign trade fell off from 1861 to 1869 $58,303, and the last three years have been even worse.

Third, the question is not a new one. It has been in Congress, in the press, in thought in the men's minds, and the President has sent us a special message upon it.

Fourth, this bill is brief and simple. It presents the plain question of the abolition of tariff duties upon all pointing materials and upon stores and supplies used in our ships. I believe it will be rejected. It applies to all vessels. All our own vessels are now immediately interested in building wooden vessels.

We have the yards, the materials, the best mechanics living, but we pay duties that cripple us in the race with the British or provincial builders' town in New Brunswick now builds as much as Maine.

Give us this relief and we can live. Our labor is better, our skill superior, our currency appreciating, and the day has not yet come when wooden vessels have no uses. We have conquered too large a share of the carrying trade of British iron shipbuilders. For certain regular voyages iron is better, but wooden sailing ships afloat their free motive power against the speed and certainty of iron steamers on voyages between particular coaling stations. A wooden vessel owned in my own district lately sailed from Cuba to Falmouth, England, in 12 days, and such voyages are not rare. Iron and steam cannot do much better. Iron has its weakness. Machinery costs heavily. Mr. Wetmore told the special committee in 1867 that seventy-three steamships were wrecked off Newfoundland to one wooden ship.

Wooden ships are needed in newly opening commerce in the far East, but the bill helps both iron and wooden shipbuilding. We should build both. Take off duties and we will do it. A practical iron ship-builder who built iron ships for our government in the war testifies to his belief that the old wooden ship-builders will easily turn to iron ship-building. A Scotch iron ship-builder tried hiring British mechanics and kept eleven of them three weeks. Nobody else tried the experiment. Duties off will give us cheap iron from abroad or bring down home iron, which is better, to far correspondent prices. In a fair field, such as this would give us, we beat the British ship-builder for thirty years up to 1860.

I cannot consent to the amendment of Mr. Cox, who wants to buy ships abroad. That measure would be the death knell of American shipbuilding.

The refuse ships from abroad would be sold cheap, and thus give new stimulus to British yards. Our builders would never see the day of fair competition begin, the start of their rivals is so great. In case of a war between England and another maritime power her ships would be put under our flag, by nominal sales, and the earnings all be spent there, and she would thus continue to maintain the supremacy that she gained by our exposed condition in the war of the rebellion.

The Portland Advertiser says the Senate apportionment bill provides "4 members for the States of smallest reputation." Which are they?

THE AUGUSTA PENSION AGENCY. We learn that on the question referred to the Maine Congressional delegation, as to whether the recommendation for the Pension Agency at Augusta should be made by Speaker Blaine or Senator Morrill in consideration of appointments hitherto influenced by Messrs. Blaine and others of our delegation.

It now appears that Oakey Hall escaped expulsion from the Union Club by promising to resign. He did resign, but circulated a letter, which the committee of the club rejected, and suppressed the actual letter on which his resignation was accepted.

A Washington special says that Charles DeLong, our Minister to Japan, comes home at his own request, on a visit, and has not, it is believed, been clothed with any diplomatic functions by the Japanese authorities, although he may desire to act for them as Mr. Burlingame did for the Chinese.

We copy the following political reminiscence from the Connecticut:—

An anonymous friend at Augusta has sent us an old record of the doings of a caucus of the Democratic members of the Legislature, in 1844. They designated a committee of 25 in the several counties of the State, whose whose duty it was to submit to the thorough organization of the party. Of these 25 but three now survive who were not in the Democratic ranks. They are Hon. Wm. P. Haines, Richard D. Rice and Alonzo Lewis. Death and Massachusetts have nearly equal hover with the rest.

THE BANGOR WATER COMPANY.

BANGOR, Jan. 24, 1872.

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier:

We were pleased to have you publish yesterday the list of subscribers to the Bangor Water Company, and it may not be amiss to add that there is no exclusiveness as to membership. At the harmonizing of the members of the Company, they passed a vote to invite and give any one the privilege to become a member of the Company, by subscribing to the stock, from one thousand to five thousand dollars, up to one hundred thousand dollars. And all such members will be admitted on the same basis with the twenty who have already taken an interest.

It is designed that this shall be a public matter for the benefit of the whole city, and not a favored few; and we think that when an ample water supply is once established in our city, the reduction in the cost of fire insurance on our property, will of itself, largely pay the water tax.

A SUBSCRIBER.

Two of the members of the committee on resolutions at the recent State Temperance convention were strongly in favor of requiring the passage by the Legislature of a constabulary act; but waived their preference for the sake of harmony and concentration of action.

THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH BILL. The following is an abstract of the bill reported to the U. S. Senate to connect the telegraph with the government postal service:

Section one establishes postal telegraph offices at all the post-offices on telegraph lines, and at all other post-offices where the gross receipts for postage are $600 a year, if within 10 miles of telegraph lines.

Section two fixes the rates, uniform for equal distances, at 25 cents between offices not over 350 miles apart; 50 cents between offices over 350 miles apart and under 500 miles, and 25 cents for each additional 500 miles. Night rates, 25 cents for 1000 miles, the rates to be refunded for delays or mistakes in transmission.

Section three provides for the payment by stamps and for the destruction of all telegrams within one month.

Section four fixes the press rates for each 100 words of special dispatches at 5 cents by night and 25 cents by day. It also fixes the rates for press associations and for private wire for newspapers.

Section six defines the duties of the fourth assistant Postmaster General over telegraph lines.

Section seven authorizes the Postmaster General to contract for the transmission of telegrams at the above rates with parties who will furnish and operate the necessary lines of telegraph.

Section eight contains provisions against tampering with telegrams and makes telegrams privileged communications as private letters.

Section nine authorizes the Postmaster General to reduce the rates in the manner therein described.

Section ten incorporates a Postal Telegraph Company for the performance of postal telegraph service, on behalf of the Postmaster General.

Sections eleven and twelve authorize the Company to buy the existing lines and obliges to purchase all such lines, if required by the owners thereof, at a supposed value.

Sets the capital stock at an amount not exceeding the last cost of its lines.

Section thirteen authorizes the company to open offices wherever the wants of business may require.

Section fourteen authorizes Congress to purchase lines at any time at an appraised value.

Section fifteen reserves to Congress the right to alter or amend the act.

Friday last was the anniversary of the birth of Robert E. Lee, and the occasion was "improved" by John Early who delivered a vilent address before the students in the chapel of Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va. From the report of this address in the Richmond Dispatch, we quote the following paragraph:—

They tell us to forget dead issues. Can these issues ever be dead? We do believe that a people who forget their traditions are unworthy of the name of freemen. Is there a brave lad in your midst that does not burn within him with the indignities of this past. Upon you, young friends, who are here within these walls preparing for life, rests the hope of your country. You have the example of Lee at Jackson before you; profit by them. Cherish them. Cultivate, who of many defeats has followed in the great captain, I need not tell you to be true. If any be renegades, let them go with the brand of infamy upon them. We have a sacred duty to perform; the name of Lee must be cared for; a monument to his name must be erected at the Confederate capital. We will do it, and show to the world that as we loved and honored him in life, we are true in death, and not unworthy to have been the followers of Robert E. Lee."

An Appeal to Reason

Health would be much more carefully guarded than it is at present, and the average of human life lengthened by many years, if common sense and the light of experience were accepted by the universal public as their medical monitor and guide. The true philosophy of health is simple. It consists in refraining from indulgences and imprudences which impair the vital forces, and in supplying any deficiency of vital power and constitutional vigor that may exist, by invigorating and alterative treatment. To reinforce and regulate a feeble system, and to prevent a more vigorous physique from yielding to unhealthy and debilitating influences, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is unquestionably the best potent of all vegetable profferers. As a stimulant, it is the purest ever administered in medical practice; as a tonic and stomachic, the most infallible; as an anti-bilious agent, the safest and surest, and as an aperient and regulating medicine, mild and painless, yet irresistible. It is a protection against disease of every kind, and all seasons, and is particularly efficacious as a means of divesting the system of the malarious germs developed by a new, damp, tropical atmosphere. Hence its great value as a preventive and invigorant. No one predisposed to indigestion, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism or nervous headache, should ever be without the Vital Elixir. As a certain class of country dealers are very anxious to pass their substitutes with "Stomach bitters," of a worthless or pernicious character, which they represent to be equal or superior to the great national family specific, it is proper to caution the public against their varieties of trade.

O. S. HOWARD'S

Improved PISTON HEAD.

Patented Nov. 7, 1871.

Being convinced by an experience of twenty years as a builder and engineer of Steam engines, that the present method of self acting packing were deficient in many respects, and having directed my attention to the subject, I now offer to the public as the result of my experiments, a SELF ACTING PACKING RING, in a solid cored head, of great simplicity and working freely in the cylinder, and performing its work in an efficient manner.

To it I confidently call the attention of practical engineers, as superior to any now in use, as the annexed certificates will show.

OSGAR S. HOWARD, Patentee.

Bangor, December, 1871.

BREWER, Nov. 21, 1871.

Mr. O. S. HOWARD:

DEAR SIR:—One year ago last summer your new Piston Head Improvement was put into a steam cylinder in Palmer & Johnson's mills, running under my charge. I am pleased to say that it has given entire satisfaction, now driving the machine to the same work with three fifths the amount of steam required with the old style of Piston Head. In my opinion your Improvement is now the most valuable Head in use for steam engines, fitting tight and using steam to a greater advantage than any other one we have ever used, and thereby gaining power.

ISAIAH REDMAN.

WM. PLAISTED & SON.

BANGOR, Dec. 15, 1871.

Mr. O. S. HOWARD, Bangor, Me.

DEAR SIR:—Having had an experience of 22 years with steam engines, and having used several kinds of piston heads, we take pleasure in recommending your Patent Piston Head as saving much fuel, oil and using steam to a greater advantage than any other one we have ever used, and thereby gaining power.

ISAIAH REDMAN.

WM. PLAISTED & SON.

BANGOR, Dec. 15, 1871.

Mr. O. S. HOWARD, Bangor, Me.

DEAR SIR:—We have been running one of your Patent Piston Heads in my mill at Passadumkeag, and I my opinion it uses steam more economically and gives a greater amount of power than any other I have ever used.

Yours Truly,

HIRAM PEAVEY, Manufact.

I coincide in the above statements.

S. R. VEAZIE.

LINCOLN, Dec. 11, 1871.

Mr. O. S. Howard, Bangor.

DEAR SIR:—Having had an experience of 22 years with steam engines, and having used several kinds of piston heads, we take pleasure in recommending your Patent Piston Head as saving much fuel, oil and using steam to a greater advantage than any other one we have ever used, and thereby gaining power.

Yours Respectfully,

WM. PLAISTED & SON.

BANGOR, Dec. 15, 1871.

Mr. O. S. HOWARD, Bangor, Me.

DEAR SIR:—We have been running for the past two years in the planing mill on Kelley's Island, in Lake Erie, owned by W. F. Pearson, Esq., a steam saw mill which we put into operation for the first year. I had your new invention of the Skeleton Head Steam and Packing Piston put into the cylinder, and the result has been that it would drive with the same pressure of steam two planers, as easy as I could one before its change was made.

KNOWLES, GORDON.

WINN, Me., Dec. 9, 1871.

Mr. O. S. HOWARD, Bangor:

DEAR SIR:—We put into our Steam engines, driving our factory, two of your Patent Piston Heads, and which we think have added at least eight horse power to their capacity, and have put one into another one to horse, and also one into our steam saw mill at Hodgdon, and they show the same results of increase of power.

We are to well pleased with them, as to have them put into our new double steam engines, which are to drive our new tannery at Medway.

G. A. MOOR.

Agent for H. Pond & Son's Tannery Wheel.

JAMES RICE, Edg. pacer.

These Heads are now being manufactured at the HINCKLEY & HOLDEN IRON WORKS, and applied to Engines, both new and old, under the direction of the Patentee.

CONNECTICUT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

A LARGE GATHERING.

...rtford, Jan. 24. The Republican State ...vention to-day, temporarily organized by ... choice of Hon. Orrin Parker of Meriden, ... temporary chairman. The Convention is ...rge one, embracing very many of the ...minent Republicans of the State. Committees were appointed on credentials, permanent organization and resolutions.

HON. AUGUSTUS BRANDEGEE.

New London, was selected as President of the Convention, with twenty-one Vice Presidents and four Secretaries. Mr. Brandegee ...n taking the chair said that the Convention ...d assembled to take up new departure in ...olitics but simply to lead on the same old ...ad Nathan Hale, in new language, ...arraigned the Democratic party for its record before and during the war, and spoke of the work accomplished by the Republican ...rty as something unparalleled in the history of any human organization. He pointed with pride to the record of the past and ...dged the party to sustain the great principles of equal rights to all men, inviting the ...peration of all friends of temperance who ...mpathized with the principles of the party ...recognized its great work.

GOV. JEWELL RENOMINATED.

The only ticket for State officers was unanimously re-nominated by acclamation as follows:—For Governor, Marshall Jewell of Hartford; for Lieut.-Governor, Morris Tyler of New Haven; Secretary of State, Hiram Appleman of Groton; Treasurer, David P. Nichols of Danbury; Comptroller, James W. Manning of Putnam.

THE CANDIDATES.

In response to Mr. Brandegee, Gov. Jewell appeared and was received with great applause. He thanked the Convention for the honor, and said it was being a time when great reforms were going on in the State and nation, he did not give it liberty to decline, and for the use his last candidacy for any office. [CONTINUED.]

The platform contains seven resolutions. The first and second are in sentiments of the Republican party and the administration, and declare unswerving devotion to its principles. Those relating to National affairs are as follows:

Third—We have undiminished confidence in the loyalty, integrity and ability of President Grant, and for the great and prominent place in the country which he will ever hold in the hearts of the people.

Fourth—In the new principles, arraigned the Democratic party for its record before and during the war, and spoke of the work accomplished by the Republican ...rty as something unparalleled in the history of any human organization. He pointed with pride to the record of the past and ...dged the party to sustain the great principles of equal rights to all men, inviting the ...peration of all friends of temperance who ...mpathized with the principles of the party ...recognized its great work.

Fifth—That we favor such a revision of the tariff as will reduce the present high rates of taxation; 2d, the present high rates of taxation; 3d, the present high rates of taxation; 4th, the present high rates of taxation; 5th, the present high rates of taxation; 6th, the present high rates of taxation; 7th, the present high rates of taxation; 8th, the present high rates of taxation; 9th, the present high rates of taxation; A RIVAL TO THE RESCUE.

CHAPTER III.

THE RIVALS.

Mr. Cyril was not a bad fellow in his way. He could not help being fearfully smitten with the lively and reckless Nellie, and he could not help, as a consequence of this first condition, making himself odious in the eyes of Charley Clifford. But I found the new curate to be a fine, cultivated man, fresh from the refinements and delights of college life, yet having a familiarity with country people and habits which made him popular among all classes in the neighborhood. He had indeed the village lads to form a very decent eleven-and-a-half and thrash the victory in the only cricket match for which there was time before the season closed. He had improved the village choir, which in old-fashioned folks feared that he was the man what popped—and now even a harmonium at Rome could have gone more freely among the poor than did Mr. Cyril.—No wonder that the villagers raved him. The new curate had won their hearts one fine Sunday by a fifteen minutes' sermon of which they could only understand the text and the benediction. No wonder that the curate was well received at the Hall. He seemed to know a good deal about landscape gardening as the head gardener himself, and was great up- on foreign shrubs. Sir Wilmot delighted in his company, and the young ladies found him most decidedly interesting. Poor Mr. Cyril! I soon saw that his was a hard case in regard to Nellie. Whether she really cared for him or not, I was puzzled to decide. But it was clear that he had hopelessly lost his heart to the Baronet's bewitching niece.

The first evening at dinner it was as good as a play to see the [illegible] each other. They had instinctively been [illegible] the moment when they met at the billiard table, and though they were far too much accustomed to society to make any hostile display in public, I could not but believe that their food must be sticking in them. The [illegible] dies exchanged meaning looks, though [illegible] to Nellie, and I observed a sad and smile flit over Clara's face, which I set down to her regret that her cousin should be such a flirt. I know better now and can well fancy why she was sad.

Nellie was in her very brightest mood. She looked so lovely that Clifford and the curate might be pardoned their headlong feelings.—To me there was a greater charm in Clara's pale, quiet beauty, in her dark, melancholy eyes, and in those smooth bands of black hair, which contrasted so well with the delicate fairness of her skin. But [illegible] things, would have been attracted by Nellie's flashing glance. Her gray eyes were as bold and fearless as an ancient Viking's looking out for lands to conquer. There was something in her voice of a ring of habitual command, in which the Viking's blood asserted itself might have addressed his hardy crew, and there was a flow of ready wit which sent dear old Sir Wilmot into convulsions of laughter.

"She'll only come out like that when she's put her foot down on some poor devil of a man," whispered Sir Wilmot in my ear as soon as the ladies withdrew. "It's the parson, now, I suppose," he added, with a nudge in my side. "I leave all such things to Lady Beauchamp. Best plan, eh?"

The Baronet laughed a jovial laugh, and asked Clifford to help himself and pass the wine. There was rather a glum look about the small party now, which it would have taken much wine to enliven. Mr. Cyril asked me if I knew Brown of Queen's. I had not, but I had met his elder brother, who lived near Eton tennis. Brown was "a good fellow," Mr. Cyril continued, "and a pleasant fellow, too. If it's the Brown I remember, he's dead, Clifford," he coughed, "about a dozen years ago."

"Perhaps our standard of excellence is different," muttered the curate. "Some men are only content with [illegible] men."

Clifford colored up and bit his lip, as if to restrain an angry reply, whilst Sir Wilmot came to the rescue.

"Let go of your cousin's mark, Charley, and the rest of it. Of course you are the best-couple-dancer now, as one's got to be, [illegible] you're not [illegible] Rose may [illegible] soul!" he went on, "how the boys [illegible] my Liquor. Why, I've seen twenty-five fellows as drunk as lords in this very room, and my grandfather locking the door on them to keep them out of mischief, when he and those fellows went off to [illegible]

Thus the [illegible] on, as he always [illegible] that his young [illegible] not seem quite to [illegible] agree, and in spoiled the conversation to [illegible] an extent quite unusual with him. Before we rose from the table and I were deep in the [illegible] of [illegible] and the curate had [illegible] [illegible] pretended to [illegible] The evening in the drawing-room was the happiest I had ever spent.
